Ancient Egypt, The Profound Mysteries: The Esoteric Sources of Their Knowledge M.G. Hawking

Penetrate one of the Great Mysteries of the Ages...

Few mysteries have captured the fascination of enlightened minds so much as the epic civilization of Ancient Egypt. The "discovery" of Egypt is one of the most brilliant chapters in archaeology. The Middle Ages knew of Egypt only as a Roman colony; the Renaissance presumed that civilization had begun with Greece; even the Enlightenment knew nothing of Ancient Egypt beyond the Pyramids. Egyptology was a by-product of Napoleonic imperialism. When the Corsican led a French expedition to Egypt in 1798 he took with him scholars interested in Egypt for the sake of a better understanding of history. It was those men who returned home with the greatest mystery of the ages in their grasp, and first revealed the magnificent temples of Luxor and Karnak to the modern world.

No one knows from whence the early Egyptians came, yet no people, ancient or modern, have conceived of building a civilization on a scale so sublime, so great, so grandiose, as the Ancient Egyptians. Their technology of architecture, agriculture, metallurgy, and engineering; the invention of glass and linen, of paper and ink, of the calendar and the clock, of geometry and the alphabet; the excellence and sublimity of sculpture and the arts; the remarkable development of orderly and peaceful government; the advancement of writing and literature, of science and medicine; the first clear formulation known to us of public conscience, the first cry for social justice, the first widespread monogamy, the first monotheism . . . all elevated to a degree of superiority and power that has seldom, if ever, been equaled since.

"It is even possible," as Faure said, "that Egypt . . . offers the spectacle of the greatest civilization that has yet appeared on the earth. We shall do well to equal it."

How were these monumental accomplishments achieved? The ascension of Egyptian civilization to a previously unknown zenith of culture lasting thousands of years demonstrated advancements that are wholly inexplicable. How did a small stone-age culture suddenly rise to create perhaps the greatest civilization of known history? Where did the Ancient Egyptians' extraordinary knowledge, power and sophistication come from?

The voluminous lore of the ancient Brahmaic and Egyptian traditions relates that in the antediluvian time of zp tpj (Zep Tepi), the "first time," mysterious, highly enlightened beings appeared in Egypt, bringing advanced knowledge and offering the gift of civilization. The texts on the walls of the Temple of Edfu contain remarkable references to the time of Zep Tepi, the arrival of the bringers of knowledge.

Plato writes that Egyptian priests kept records of their history going back over nineteen-thousand years: "Egypt has recorded and kept eternally the wisdom of the old times . . . all coming from time immemorial when gods governed the earth in the dawn of civilization."

Herodotus tells us that when Hecataeus of Miletus boasted to the Egyptian priests that he could trace his ancestry through fifteen centuries, they quietly showed him, in a hidden sanctuary deep under the sands, the statutes of 345 high priests, each the son of the preceding, making 345 generations since their "gods" had appeared in the Nile valley. Who were these mysterious, highly enlightened individuals? Who were these "gods"?

This book explores in-depth answers to these profound mysteries as revealed in the remarkable encounters with a legendary "mountain goddess" experienced by explorer M.G. Hawking and his companions deep in the Himalayan Mountains. A rare and extraordinary account that is thought provoking and richly enlightening, this book will linger in your heart and mind long after the last words have been read.
